

The Revd Canon Dr Jeremy Morris is the Church of England's National Adviser on Ecumenical Relations.

He leads the Church of England's ecumenical work, and advises the Archbishops of Canterbury and York on ecumenical affairs.

He is the former Master of Trinity Hall, Cambridge, and a specialist in modern religious history, including the Anglican tradition and ecumenical movement.

His books include The High Church Revival in the Church of England: Arguments and Identities (2016), The Oxford History of Anglicanism, Vol. 4. Global Western Anglicanism c.1910-2000 (2017), and A People's Church: A History of the Church of England (2022).